

ABSTRACT

A binder including a spine, a pair of covers pivotally coupled to opposite edges of the spine, and a storage component located on an outer surface of the spine. The storage component defines a storage cavity therein for receiving loose articles and includes an access door that is pivotable about an axis that extends generally parallel to the spine to provide access to the storage cavity.